F. M. Wells, Chairman.

SAM J. McMINN, Secretary.

The democrat who is not entirely satisfied with the Chicago convention is certainly hard to please.

It is a whole lot of consolation to know that the Roosevelt ticket has to go up against the voters.

Roosevelt's convention did almost as much for Mr. Bryan as if Teddy had called it in his interest.

Don't take any stock, buddy, in the yawp about democrats who are supporting Teddy's nominees. No true democrat is going to support that ticket.

The nomination of Sherman for vice president was not intended, we guess, to "break the solid south." The people down that way have not forgotten the gentlemen called Gen. Sherman and his careless way of handling fire.

THAT was a splendid exhibition of open bidding for votes when with the temperature close to 100 degrees, a Chicago negro named Dennison was called to the chair and presided during the closing scenes of the republican national convention.

Some real interesting reading—if it could be persuaded to give it out—would be the Globe-Democrat's account of the conversion of that delectable sheet to the support of Taft immediately after months of a sneaking, underhanded fight on him that has scarcely a parallel in journalism.

The offer of $1,000,000,000,000 by the Kansas City Post for an accurate diagram showing just exactly what the Chicago platform means, with as many guesses as you want, may look good to a rank sucker, but no man who understands the English language a little bit will waste a minute on it.

A New York telegram says that J. Pierpont Morgan, fresh from a trip to Europe, said "Good, good," just like that, when informed of the nomination of Taft by Roosevelt's convention. Of course he did. J. D. Rockefeller, Morton—the few of railroad racketeers—and a few other miscreants are yet to hear from, but there is no doubt about their obeying the orders of the boss.

Some St. Louis capitalists, claiming to be democrats, have expressed themselves in favor of Taft over Bryan—if we may believe that great and good paper, the Globe-Democrat. Now, will somebody tell us the difference between the man who opposes Mr. Bryan for fear that he will enforce the trust and corporation laws and the negro who sells his vote to the republicans for a $2 bill. The former, not considering for a moment any interest but his trust or his tariff-protected shop, puts his franchise up to the highest bidder and so does the coon. It's simply a matter of dollars with both of them, and one is as much a democrat as the other.

Roosevelt's convention nominated Wm. H. Taft of Ohio for president and James S. Sherman of New York for vice president. Let us see what a thoughtful and consistent independent writer, Lincoln L. Steffens, thinks of the convention and platform. He says:

It is as wrong for a president to name his successor as it is for him to take himself the third forbidden term. No matter about that now, however. The point is that he has lost. In spite of his sacrifices, in spite of his apparent victory, he stands defeated. He may not think this. I have no doubt he soon will say that he is satisfied, that he believes his party will carry out his policies. But it won't. Taft may try to complete some of the reforms that Roosevelt has left unfinished, but his party will oppose him, as it has the president. Taft is a conservative, not a liberal, as Roosevelt has been. But read the party platform, read it slowly and with thought; then read the planks that were rejected. Take one or two instances. Congressman Cooper from the Wisconsin delegation offered a plank requiring publicity of campaign contributions. There can be no honest objection to that. It is a safe and sane blow at one of the methods of our political corruption. The resolution committee would have none of it. Cooper was the only man that voted for it, but he carried his platform out upon the floor and there, fortunately, some delegate asked for a separate vote upon the publicity plank. And that convention beat that plank by an overwhelming vote! The Wisconsin delegation proposed a plank for the valuation of railroads. The railroads hate the idea, it is a menace not only to their rate-making powers of taxation, but also to stock watering, and they opposed this plank; their representatives in the resolutions committee were against it, and the committee threw it out. Cooper carried it to the convention, where, in a separate vote, it was voted out of sight. We need not go on. Labor got nothing, absolutely nothing; but no other common interest got anything either. There is nothing new or clear, nothing definite or generous in that whole platform. The anti-injunction plank is an example. It contains a bow to the courts, a bow to labor, a bow to capital, and that's all.

Wolf Creek.

(Arrived too late for last week.)

Sunday school is progressing nicely at Trinity church.

Andrew Bollinger of near Marble Hill was in this vicinity visiting relatives and friends a few days last week.

Misses Agnes Propst and Myrtle Moore spent a day fishing last week.

Cove Yates and Roy Smith went to Daisy Sunday.

M. A. Smith is on the puny list at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bollinger and family visited Mrs. Bollinger's sister, Mrs. Alex Seabaugh, Saturday night and Sunday.

George Haupt is building a new barn. Two LITTLE COUSINS.

Bessville.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richards, June 13, 1908, a fine girl baby.

Rev. D. E. Barrett failed to fill his appointment at the Ridge church last Sunday. I failed to learn why he was not there.

Quite a number of our people attended Children's Day exercises at Mt. Carmel church Sunday.

Mrs. Will Collins is quite sick.

The young folks enjoyed a party at J. Whitener's Friday night.

Mart Conley and family are visiting relatives in some of the counties south of here.

There will be another effort made to change the location of our schoolhouse June 27.

Ira Welker and wife returned to Fredericktown last week.

John Timmer and wife and their grand-daughter, Miss Nellie, visited at Mr. McLean's Saturday and Sunday.

BESSVILLE.

Leopold.

Health is still good in this vicinity.

Messrs. George and August Nenniger started out with their threshing machine Monday.

Prof. B. L. Hotze and wife went to St. Louis last Sunday where they will spend a few days with relatives and friends.

They will go from there to Effingham, Ill., to visit Prof. Hotze's parents.

Rev. J. M. Huber of Glenon, accompanied by his sister, Marie, and Misses Bernadine Page and Catherine Lafarge, were on our streets last Monday.

Wheeler Mitchell and Freeman Graves of Marble Hill were in our town last Sunday.

The Leopold baseball team played the Dongola team Sunday. The score stood 14 to 10 in favor of Leopold.

The Leopold brass band has more calls than it can fill. The boys make good music and the fact seems to be appreciated. They will play at Alienville the Fourth of July.

Miss Mary Clippard celebrated her twenty-first birthday last Sunday. A number of her young friends gathered at her home and all spent a few hours pleasantly.

Little Miss Della Ashly, daughter of Dr. A. J. Ashly, had the misfortune to step on a nail which penetrated her foot making a very painful wound recently.

Her foot is slowly improving now though.

Henry Terry bought a new buggy while in Marble Hill last Saturday. He says he is going to bump the rocks on springs awhile.

Hahn.

Health is good.

Wheat harvest is over. The crop is very light.

Tos Fee is suffering with a catarrh on his hand.

Some of the farmers say oats will hardly be worth harvesting in this section, and the hay crop will be light, on account of the early rains.

Rev. Samuel Virden filled the regular appointment at Union Hill, last Sunday, for Rev. Mouser.

Add Key and Willis Dial are stacking wheat.

Burette Key, one of our prominent young men, went to Farnfeld last Monday, seeking employment, but returned Friday and reported "nothing doing."

Hiram Ford left these parts last week, seeking employment.

Rev. Helton preaches at Union Hill every third Sunday.

James Gray is very low, not expected to recover.

Monroe Null, it seems, is studying blacksmithing, as I am informed that he spends the biggest part of his time at David Shell's. Are you learning to "shoo" flies, Monroe?

Owing to the busy time of year, the Farmers' union Fourth of July picnic has been postponed until some time in August.

I disagree with Green Fuz in his statement in regard to James Davis learning to play the banjo at O. E. Ford's, as he has no such instrument.

Sunday school at Castor Valley church every Sunday afternoon. OLYMPIA.
